

On September 24, 2018, vote for Post-Secondary Education

	Strong public universities make a stronger and healthier New Brunswick University graduates directly advance our economic and social development by way of their professional activities, make greater contributions to the tax revenue needed to support our social programs and public healthcare system.
	Public universities as a public good The economic, social and even health-related benefits of a university education for New Brunswickers are clear and these benefits demonstrate that our institutions of higher learning represent an invaluable common good.
	New Brunswick public universities for a better future Universities must be open to and inclusive of everyone, and they must be provided with the necessary resources to transform and eliminate systemic barriers at all levels. This is the highest calling for post-secondary institutions in a truly democratic and egalitarian society.
	Make it fair How is it that the institutions dedicated to improving opportunities for our youth are simultaneously providing fewer and fewer fair opportunities for their own employees, our country's educators? The Federation of New Brunswick Faculty Associations advocates the rights of our contract academic staff members to fair opportunities, security and respect in the workplace.
